Trooper Dropped From Sky

Victim Jumps
From Car; Another
Locked In Trunk

A 27-year-old Buchanan man, currently on probation from Berrien county, was captured Sunday following an abduction of two mothers and a baby from in front of a Lansing church Sunday morning.

Captured in spectacular fashion four hours after the kidnapping was Gary Lee Hoskins. He was seen in a wooded area 40 miles west of Lansing by Paw Paw State Trooper Royal Gaddy. The trooper said he spotted Hoskins from a National Guard helicopter during a widespread manhunt. Gaddy was lowered to the ground, crept up behind Hoskins and captured him without a struggle.

The two women and the baby were kidnapped as they stopped to let four children out at the church. One of the women later escaped and spread the alarm. The other was locked in the trunk. The baby was on the floor of the car when the auto was found abandoned on a country road. No one was harmed.

No charges have yet been filed against Hoskins. The case has been turned over to Lansing police for investigation.

Mrs. Joan VanAuken and Mrs. Carol Emerson, both 31 and both Sunday School teachers, had just stopped their car near St. Paul's Episcopal Church, across from the State Capitol in Lansing, and let out four children when a man climbed into the car and said "start driving."

ANGRY
In the car was Mrs. VanAuken's six-month-old baby, Mark.

The kidnaper got angry and started cursing when they pleaded with him to let them go, the women said. About 20 miles from Lansing, he ordered Mrs. VanAuken to stop the car and forced Mrs. Emerson into the trunk.

"You're too much for me if you decide to make trouble," Mrs. VanAuken said the man explained.

Farther west, Mrs. VanAuken tried to attract two men in a backyard by screaming for help.

"The two men just stood there watching, flabbergasted. I guess they thought it was a family fight," she said.

As the car slowed, Mrs. VanAuken slipped out the door and ran away from her captor. He drove off with Mrs. Emerson still in the trunk and the baby on the floor.

BRIEF LOOK
A few minutes later, the kidnaper stopped the car, unlocked the trunk and let her look with him from a bluff for possible pursuers. He then locked Mrs.

High Court Rules For Dr. Sam

Says Sheppard Trial 'Unfair'

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court ruled today Dr. Samuel H. Sheppard did not receive a fair trial in the bludgeoning slaying of his first wife, Marilyn.

Justice Tom C. Clark announced the decision of the court.

Justice Hugo L. Black noted a dissent. Clark said the court had concluded "that Sheppard did not receive a fair trial consistent with the due process clause of the 14th Amendment." The court, therefore, Clark said, reversed a 2-1 decision by the U. S. Circuit Court in Cincinnati, which found no evidence that Sheppard had been deprived of federal rights.

Clark concluded his opinion by saying the Sheppard case must go back to the U. S. District Court in Ohio and that court must order Sheppard released from custody until the state puts him to its charges again within a reasonable time.

World Watches Landing

Craft Splashes Down Within Sight Of Ship

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — The Gemini 9 astronauts rode their spaceship to a near-perfect safe landing in the Atlantic today, climaxing a sensational, often-troublesome flight highlighted by Eugene A. Cernan's record space walk.

Astroauts Thomas P. Stafford and Cernan made the most accurate landing in the U.S. space program. They parked Gemini 9 less than two miles from the aiming point and only about three miles from the main recovery ship, the aircraft carrier Wasp, and in the view of television watchers.

The "on the money" splash-down came at 10 a.m. EDT after a flight of three days and 21 minutes during which Gemini 9 circled the globe 45 times and traveled nearly 1,200,000 miles.

With thousands of sailors cheering, the Wasp maneuvered alongside and retrieved the pilots and spacecraft from the sea 50 minutes later.

THUMBS UP
Stafford and Cernan acknowledged the cheers with waves and "thumbs up" signals. Both appeared relaxed and in excellent physical condition.

Command pilot Stafford, whose cool, on-the-spot decisions played a key role in the mission, steered the space ship to a touchdown within sight of the carrier and on-deck television cameras, which relayed the dramatic picture via the Early Bird satellite.

"Pretty close for government work," commented a flight dynamics officer.

On the deck, the hatches were opened and the smiling space twins stood up, waved at the sailors and the television cameras, and shook hands with Navy and space agency officials.

They then shook hands with one another and Stafford rubbed his three-day old beard and laughed.

The 17-piece ship's band struck up "Anchors Aweigh" as the astronauts headed for a two-hour examination.

BANNER READY

A large banner on the deck read: "Welcome Stafford (again) and Cernan."

The Wasp also retrieved Stafford and Walter M. Schirra Jr. after the Gemini 6 flight in December.

Capt. Gordon E. Hartley, the Wasp commander, said: "We had our share of good ones, but this was the best of all, just the way we planned it."

He said he put the ship a little short of target just in case Stafford carried out his threat to fly "right down the smokestack."

Stafford, making his second flight into space in six months, was aided in the textbook landing by Cernan who used the spacecraft computer to help calculate the maneuvers as Gemini sped back through the atmosphere.

He had an assist from a easterly wind that helped blow the craft toward the carrier.

A helicopter was overhead within seconds and Navy frogmen leaped into the water to attach a flotation collar.

The divers reported Stafford and Cernan gave the "thumbs up" signal through their spacecraft window as it bobbed in the four-to-five-foot waves.

They appeared in excellent condition, the divers reported.

The astronauts elected to stay in the spacecraft until the Wasp came alongside.

The spacecraft hatch was opened nine minutes after touchdown and Stafford and Cernan stood up and waved at the Wasp.

Tombstones Tipped Over In Cemetery Near Paw Paw

PAW PAW — Vandals damaged 26 tombstones and markers, including that of former Berrien County Agricultural Agent Harry J. Lurkins, at the Cuddeback cemetery southwest of Paw Paw, according to state police. Also damaged Saturday morning were a number of war memorial markers and flags, and several flower urns. One of the largest markers tipped over was that of Harry J. and Katherine Lurkins. Lurkins is remembered as one of the founders of present day agriculture and horticulture in Berrien county, where he served as agricultural agent from 1920 to 1927 and again from 1927 to 1945. Mrs. Lurkins served as his office assistant during most of his years as county agent. Officers said costs of re-setting the markers would approach the $500 mark, in addition to damage done to several of the markers that were chipped or broken. No arrests have been made, but officers are questioning three boys, ages 10, 17 and 19, in connection with the destruction.

Vocational Education Meeting Set

Group To Review
9 Months Work

Tonight, a group of Berrien county civic leaders will meet at 7:30 p.m. at Lakeshore high school to review more than nine months of work in one of the pressing areas of county need.

They are the members of the Berrien County Vocational-Technical Study committee. Since last September, they have been assessing existing vocational education programs in Berrien with an eye to possible improvement.

When they analyze final reports tonight, the conclusion will be clear: Vocational education in Berrien is suffering. Two area vied centers, one in the north part of Berrien and the other in the county's southern district, will be suggested to serve high school students.

In addition, their reports will show, Lake Michigan college should be expanded as an area vocational center to serve post-high school age youths and adults.

The committee will recommend that such a program be financed through county-wide school millage, backed up by available federal and state funds. And they will call for the hiring of a county vied consultant to implement these programs.

These, this newspaper has learned, are the key recommendations of the Vocational-Technical study. Starting today, a six-part series of articles will examine the need for vocational education programs in Berrien county. (First article on page 13)

One-Way Traffic At Market

Streets Change For Season

As in the past, two streets adjacent to the Benton Harbor fruit market are being changed from two-way to one-way traffic for the duration of the market season, C.C. Smith, Benton Harbor public works superintendent, has announced.

Smith said that effective today Bond street will be for eastbound traffic only between Colfax avenue and 11th street and Market street will be for westbound traffic only between Colfax avenue and 12th street.

Public works employees are busy today making the necessary changes in traffic control devices. The streets will be changed back to two-way at the end of the market season, about Nov. 1, Smith said.

A Different Kind Of Commencement

"Commencement; education: the day when or the ceremonies at which degrees or diplomas are conferred, also, the period of festivities at this time," Webster's New International Dictionary, Second Edition, Unabridged.

Paraphrasing Winston Churchill's famous summary of the North African campaign in World War II, commencement might be likened to the end of the beginning; the beginning being the formal closing of a given period of professional instruction and the moving of the student into a different realm of learning, be it at a job or in a higher educational level.

The Detroit area schools are witnessing a commencement never anticipated by the lexicographer nor by the public. This is the rash of teacher strikes.

These walkouts are prompted in part by a misconception of an amendment to the Hutchinson Act last year.

The original statute sponsored by our Cong. Hutchinson when he was a state senator in 1947 prohibits public employees from striking and imposes economic penalties for walkouts.

The 1965 amendment sanctions collective bargaining between public employees and their hiring agencies and cancels the economic penalties. It still bans the strike as a weapon in the bargaining process.

Additionally, the state mediation service is extended into the public employment domain if requested by either or both of the disputants.

Whether the teachers have misinterpreted the law or chosen to ignore it, the fact remains that without first calling on the mediation service they are picketing and demonstrating outside the cloistered halls of knowledge.

News accounts of the argument are fuzzy as to what issues are involved, but a central theme appears to be contracts for the ensuing school year on terms more favorable to the faculty members.

Economics loom large in the squabble and possibly because of resentment over the Detroit school board removing a principal from one high school on the demand of insurgent Negro students, many of the teachers groups are insisting upon a better disciplinary atmosphere.

One circuit judge refused to slap an injunction on one striking unit, a decision now being appealed by the school board in question.

Two other judges employing the LBJ "jawbone" technique are keeping two districts operating by forced bargaining sessions.

Otherwise the Detroit suburban area is an educational cauldron.

Who's at fault is hard to say, except that the news releases indicate teachers and school boards alike seemingly demonstrate a remarkable lack of understanding for one another's problems. The reaction is a childlike petulance in both directions.

Certainly the contrast with the manner in which the St. Joseph teachers and the local school board settled on new contracts a few weeks ago is dramatic.

The local board started off on the premise that adjustments were in order and the teachers had a good understanding of the financial problems surrounding the St. Joe district in the manner of the Indians attacking a settlers' wagon train.

In that calm air of give and take it was simple to arrive at the best commitment possible under the circumstances.

This is the comparison of a mature approach with that of a schoolboy.

Callback Pleas Ignored

After the publicity given charges of automobile defects, the sharp comments by some members of Congress and others, automobile dealers have been bracing themselves for angry motorists to come in with complaints and demands for rework.

They haven't come. Letters sent out by manufacturers and dealers asking owners to bring their 1966 models in for checking of possible trouble spots have been almost totally ignored. Large dealers report only one or two responses to hundreds of notices.

It isn't that the manufacturers aren't trying to get back for a checkup all the models in which defects, many minor, have been found. Their letters have been frank and frequent and their pressure on dealers to get the owners to come in has been unrelenting.

In view of the poor public response to the callback campaigns, it is difficult to escape the conclusion that motorists couldn't care less. This reaction isn't surprising. It confirms what automobile manufacturers have been saying. It is their contention they have been building all the safety into their products the public will pay for. To go further without public acceptance could put them in competitive difficulty.

One need only review accident reports, or scan newspaper accounts of traffic accidents, to learn only a small percentage are caused by a mechanical defect of the vehicle. Of these, all but a small minority will be found to have been defects caused by wear.

American cars prove themselves in miles traveled per accident to be structurally safer year by year. The one general complaint which might be leveled against Detroit is its emphasis on high horsepower engines. These are probably safer than less responsive engines, in the hands of a competent driver.

All the wishful thinking will not change the fact it is the motorist and the pedestrian who are responsible for the largest part of the heavy highway toll. An objective study also might reveal poor highways take a higher toll than do automobile defects.

Collision Course

The word on the planetoid Icarus is encouraging. It will not collide with the earth on June 15, 1968. A California scientist says that those who sounded the alarm were way off, that Icarus will miss earth by a comfortable four million miles.

Just what would have been done to avoid a collision is not clear. Some experts suggested that hydrogen bombs could have been exploded on the half-mile wide asteroid to shift its path. This would have been tricky business, scientifically and diplomatically.

Would the bomb be affixed by the United States or the Soviet Union or both? Wouldn't such an explosion violate the nuclear test-ban treaty? Surely Peking would blame Icarus on capitalism and Marxist deviationists. And President de Gaulle could be depended on to demand a planetoid of his own.

The debate would rage on, as Icarus drew closer. In the end, though, the nations would unite before the common danger. Icarus would be diverted and the nations would return to normal.

Then there is also the possibility that it's the California scientist who is wrong.

The collection of books included encyclopedia sets, Golden Books, and other suitable books for classroom use or reading. Books that were not suitable for schools were set aside and will be donated to Berrien General hospital.

NAVY JOB GIVEN TO BOAT FACTORY

Gordon S. Clark, president and treasurer of the Dachel-Carter Shipbuilding company here, announced today that work will start immediately on two 130-foot mine sweepers for the U.S. Navy, with an undetermined number of additional sweepers to be built when the first two are finished.

The mine sweepers will be of wood construction and powered by two 500-horsepower Diesel engines each, President Clark said. They will be built for the severest type of ocean service.

The contract is for $646,000 and at least 300 men will be required to complete the first two craft, according to Clark.

If you think you have had any embarrassing moments lately, consider the predicament of the engineer of a twelve-car train who pulled into Manhattan recently, then discovered he was all alone: the twelve cars had somehow been disconnected several miles outside the terminal. Sheepishly, the engineer backed up and retrieved the cars. The passengers, some irate, other so engrossed in their card games they never even were aware of the delay, disembarked 33 minutes late.

speaking of YOUR HEALTH

By Lester L. Coleman, M. D.

What is the meaning of red streaks running up the ankle and the lower part of the leg? These red streaks indicate that there is some inflammation of infection of the small outer veins of the feet and legs. Almost always a crack or break in the skin on the foot or in between the toes is the site of infection from where this phlebitis originates.

Phlebitis deserves immediate attention both in the area from which it starts and in the affected veins. Athlete's foot due to a fungus frequently permits a germ to enter the skin and produce phlebitis.

When albumin is found in the urine does it indicate severe trouble?

Normally, albumin is not found in the urine. Occasionally, there may be a trace in a single specimen and when the test is repeated albumin is absent.

Such an occasional finding is unimportant and can be attributed to a large meal, overexertion or even standing on one's feet for a long period of time.

When albumin is found regularly, the cause must be tracked down, since its presence may indicate some abnormality in the blood or in the kidneys.

The severity of the trouble depends only on the nature of the underlying condition.

How does a compound fracture differ from a simple one? A compound fracture is one in which the fragments of bone have gone through the muscles or the skin. A simple fracture is one in which the segments of the bone have not broken the skin.

It is a misconception to believe that "simple" means that a fracture is not serious. This is not so. A simple fracture and a compound fracture may both be severe and cause a great deal of damage depending upon the particular bone and the extent of the injury.

There is another kind of fracture called the green stick fracture in which the bone is not completely broken through, but rather splintered and bent.

All fractures must, of course, be treated and carefully followed until the bone knits completely.

Do pregnant women really develop a mask of "pregnancy"?

Very occasionally a temporary brownish discoloration appears on the cheeks of pregnant women. This usually disappears after the child is born. It is called chloasma and is probably caused by a temporary hormone imbalance associated with pregnancy.

Opening lead — four of clubs. This hand occurred a few years ago in the team of four event at the San Francisco Regionals.

All over the room everybody was making five spades. Declarer had to lose a diamond and a club, and there was no way of avoiding these two losers. At some tables, in fact, the contract was six spades, but the slam invariably went down one.

But a strange thing happened at one table. South arrived at four spades on the bidding shown — and went down one! What's more, many declarers would have suffered exactly the same fate had they encountered the remarkable defense East and West put up on this hand.

West led his singleton club, the usual lead at most tables. Dummy played the ten, and East, Lee Vernoff, of Los Angeles, played the deuce.

Declarer, happy to have saved a club trick, and finding himself in dummy, seized the opportunity to lead the jack of diamonds and finesse.

West won with the king and returned a diamond which Mrs. Vernoff trumped. Back came a club which West ruffed. It was trick number three for the defense.

West led another diamond, and declarer — who now realized that the club trick he had gained on the opening lead had been recovered by the defense with interest — did his best by ruffing with the nine. Unfortunately, East was able to overruff with the jack and the outcome was that South went down one.

It is hard to blame declarer, playing duplicate, for having fallen into the trap set by Mrs. Vernoff. South knew he had gained a trick on the opening lead, and he was reluctant to give it back by drawing trumps and then conceding a diamond to the king without bothering to finesse.

Tournaments are not won by returning favors to the opposition, and at trick two South merely did what came natural.

IT'S BEEN SAID

No man is able to make progress when he is wavering between opposite things.—Epictetus.

BORN TODAY

American revolutionary hero Nathan Hale was born at Coventry, Conn., in 1755. He was raised on his father's farm, educated at the local school and entered Yale University at the same time as an older brother. Often referred to as the "flower of the family," he was widely popular at Yale, an excellent student, and graduated with honors in 1773.

He had a talent for teaching and became a schoolmaster, first at East Haddam, then at New London, Conn. He enjoyed his work and made many friends but gave up both to join the newly created Seventh Regiment in July, 1775. In August of the following year, when General Washington called for a volunteer to spy behind the British lines, young Captain Hale offered his services.

Disguised as a Dutch schoolmaster, he crossed Long Island Sound and penetrated the enemy lines. No record of his movements during the second week of September are extant, but he was captured Sept. 21, some say he was recognized by a Tory relative. On Sept. 22 the British announced in New York that he had been executed as a spy that morning.

According to tradition, Hale met death with a courageous dignity that has endeared him to all Americans, and made his name one to be remembered in the list of the nation's heroes.

Others born this day are author Thomas Mann, composer Aam Khachaturian, playwright Robert Sheriff, actor Walter Abel, baseball's Bill Dickey and Carlton Wiley.

Much business and social activity is foreseen. Today's child will be highly intellectual.

REALTORS HIT 'OPEN OCCUPANCY' PROPOSAL

CLASS OF '66 BOWS OUT: Retaining wall on Lakeview avenue near St. Joseph high school has been favorite spot in past years for slogan painting. Most of slogans have been accompanied by the identifying mark "Class of '66." Although it has never actually been determined that members of the class were the painters, the class as a whole has taken on the task of repainting the wall each time the vandalism occurred. Last week, on the eve of graduation, it happened again, as this photo shows. Principal Horace Webb simply mentioned the problem and a group of this year's graduates painted the signs over. So the wall is now as pure and shining as the faces of the graduates at last night's baccalaureate in the high school gym. (Staff Photo)

Appeal To Senators, Hutchinson

Objective Good, Method Wrong, Statement Charges

LaVern R. Rice of Paw Paw, president of the Southwestern Michigan Board of Realtors, today urged the area's representatives in Congress to eliminate the so-called "open occupancy" provisions of the administration's new civil rights bill.

As now proposed, Rice said the bill would strip home and property owners of their traditional right to choose to whom they may sell or rent their property.

In a communication to senators Philip Hart and Robert Griffin and to Congressman Edward Hutchinson, Rice said, on behalf of the board, the threat to the traditional freedom of choice and contract that is contained in the federal forced housing proposal introduced at the request of President Johnson, Title IV of the new civil rights bill. The local board is one of 1,532 boards affiliated with the 83,000-member National Association of Real Estate Boards which has expressed its concern over the proposal.

Wrong Stall Listed For Donations

Pony Express Ride Saturday

The horse got in the wrong stall — so to speak — in a report of plans for the annual Pony Express ride June 11.

Donations for the Leader Doge for the Blind school, which will be carried across southern Michigan by horseback, should go to Post Office box 72, Stevensville, rather than box 27, as was reported Saturday.

The donations should be in a stamped envelope. Donors may also place a stamped letter to a friend or relative in with donations and it will be carried along and have a Pony Express ride stamp on it when it arrives.

Donations and letters must be mailed before June 9 to catch the 1966 Pony Express departure and obtain the express ride stamp. Riders leave from New Buffalo, on the west, and Monroe, on the east, the morning of June 11 and meet in Coldwater for the fourth annual express ride celebration about 2 p.m.

Baccalaureate rites last night in St. Joseph High school gymnasium drew 600 parents and friends and 250 graduates.

Today seniors were honored at the annual breakfast at St. Joseph Elks club and the 94th commencement exercises were scheduled for 8 p.m. Wednesday in Dickinson stadium.

The Rev. Stewart H. Ross, rector of St. Peter's Episcopal church, St. Joseph, took the scripture reading from the Book of Ecclesiastes which told of famous people of the past who contributed to the life of the nation.

The program was sponsored by the Twin City Ministerial association.

"So Little Time" by Warren was sung by the high school choir under the direction of Dennis Bowen and the congregation sang "Oh God Our Help in Ages Past," and "God of Our Fathers," accompanied by the high school band under the direction of Robert W. Brown. The band also played the procession and recessional.

B.H. Woman Is Injured

A 22-year-old Benton Harbor woman suffered a small cut over her right eye about midnight Saturday night in an auto accident in St. Joseph.

Joyce Barker of 417½ Territorial road, passenger in an auto driven by Robert J. Johnson, 34, of 465 South Fair avenue, Benton Harbor, was treated at Memorial hospital and released.

St. Joseph police said the accident occurred when the Johnson auto crossed the center line of Water street near the foot of the State street hill and collided with one driven by Boyce M. Boyer, 60, of 700 Hickory lane, Benton township.

starts a four-year course that could lead to a post graduate degree in this relatively new field of diagnostic medicine but would also mean a radical change in the medical life he has known since graduating from the University of Michigan medical school in 1949.

Dr. Hayes at 40 — at the midpoint of his medical career — said he had decided to return to the classroom and clinic and in effect become a specialist, only after long deliberation.

He said he agreed with Dr. Paul Hanna, who retired last year from active practice, when the veteran St. Joseph physician suggested that all doctors, both specialists and otherwise, become general practitioners for a while at least. This would not only help solve the shortage of general practitioners but would give the physician a better basis on which to choose a specialty, Dr. Hayes said.

DIFFICULT CHOICE
It was not an easy decision to make, Dr. Hayes said, to leave the practice he has built up in the Twin Cities, but he explained that the growing tendency toward specialization left the general practitioner with a steadily narrowing field of operation.

The exact scope of the field he is entering in radiology may not become evident until the fourth year of his academic residency, he said. While X-rays, radium treatments and other phases of nuclear medicine are not new, still that field represents an area in which many of the new developments will be made in the art of healing and offers the greatest challenge, he said.

The years he spent in ministering to a wide variety of illnesses, the general practitioner faces, will in a way offset the competition he will face from young physicians who are just graduating from medical school with new theories and new medical developments.

It is difficult to look four years in the future and say for certain what he will be doing, Dr. Hayes said. It is possible that he and his family might return to the Twin Cities after receiving his degree, but that much will depend on how his interests develop within the new field and what opportunities may present.

All of the male members of the Hayes family — his father and his two brothers, are doctors. His father, Lawrence Hayes, M.D., is now retired, living in Howard City where he practiced many years. One brother, Dr. Lawrence, Jr., is in Belleville, Ill., and another, John, is an associate professor of orthopedics at the University of Michigan.

After graduating from Michigan, Dr. Hayes served his internship at Indianapolis General hospital, Indianapolis, Ind. (1949-50) and served in the U.S. Navy stationed at Norfolk and on board the fleet flagship, the USS Missouri (1950-52) before coming to Michigan. He was associated with Dr. Fred Lindendelf for a year in Niles before coming to St. Joseph.

He organized the St. Joseph Family Clinic, moving his practice into a new office building in October 1961. He was associated with Dr. David Hills and Dr. A.J. May. Dr. May left in February 1965 to accept a position in Indiana and Dr. Albert Rizzo joined the clinic last January.

The doctors of the clinic are seeking another and possibly two more physicians for the staff here but draft calls have accentuated the shortage of doctors.

Dr. Hayes has held most of the positions at Memorial hospital including the post as chief of staff last year.

He has served as vestryman and delegate to diocesan conventions for St. Paul's Episcopal church, St. Joseph.

Dr. and Mrs. Hayes and their three children reside at 4029 Lake Shore drive in Shoreham, south of St. Joseph.

Music was provided by the high school orchestra, directed by Willis Scarfoss; and the A Cappella choir, directed by Miss Virginia Archer.

Participating ministers were the Rev. Wesley Gordon of Union Memorial A.M.E. church; the Rev. Howard A. Lyman, Methodist Peace Temple; and the Rev. Ellis Marshburn, First Presbyterian church.

The senior class will be graduating in ceremonies at 8 p.m. Thursday, at Filistrup field.

SILVER BEACH Three Girls Accosted In Tunnel

Three little St. Joseph girls were accosted Sunday afternoon in the dark tunnel of the fun house at Silver Beach, but were unharmed.

The girls, 6, 9 and 10 years old, told their parents two or three young colored boys grabbed them in the tunnel. A short time later, they said, another colored boy entered the tunnel and told the assailants to release the girls.

When they refused, the girls said, the boy shoved one of the assailants, freed the girls and escorted them to the fun house exit.

All of the boys were gone by the time St. Joseph police received word of the incident.

Legislature

LANSING (AP)—Final work on the 1966-67 state budget tops the legislative agenda as the final days of session action began this afternoon.

General fund state spending in the area of $970 million to $985 million is expected as spending committees in each house perform their final cuts and adds on budget bills.

All legislation which has already passed one house must pass the other by midnight Wednesday. Then any differences in versions passed by each chamber will be ironed out by midnight Friday before lawmakers head home for seven weeks of primary election campaigning.

Budget bills totaled $1.019 billion after they had each passed one house. But trimming, especially in school aid and welfare expected to bring down the final figure. Gov. George Romney recommended spending $944.9 million.

Other principal measures awaiting action include county home rule, a conflict of interest code for legislators, apportionment of county boards of supervisors and the question of whether voters should have to approve a city income tax.

Results Of Berrien
Study ToldOver 60 Leading Citizens Help
In Broad Survey

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the first in a series of six articles on the vocational education needs of Berrien county.)

In February, 1965, the Berrien County Intermediate School district announced that it would begin to investigate vocational education in the county.

At that time, county school officials felt that some improvements were needed. Doyle Barkmeier, county school superintendent, noted:

"We know the need in Berrien county has been growing for vocational programs. Across the state of Michigan, 60 to 80 per cent of all youths need some sort of occupational preparation distinct from pre-collegiate work."

COMMITTEE FORMED

Thus came the idea for the Berrien County Vocational-Technical study. In the following months, committees were formed. Dr. Raymond A. Dannenberg, professor of distributive education at Western Michigan university, was retained to direct the study on a two-day-a-week basis.

By September of last year, the study was in full swing. Committees with members representing schools, business, labor and government were at work. Their purpose was to conduct surveys to determine what Berrien had in vocational education, what the public felt it needed and what should be done in the future.

More than 60 citizens from all parts of Berrien were appointed to serve on six subcommittees. One committee was in charge of studying legislation and finance. Another agreed to survey business, industry and agriculture.

Other committees worked with public and elementary schools, private and religious schools and with Lake Michigan college. Still another group surveyed recent graduates of Berrien high schools.

CHAIRMEN

Chairmen of the committees were: Legislation and finance — Myron Reyher, New Buffalo school superintendent; Business, industry and agriculture — John Kovac, vocational coordinator at Niles high school; Public schools — Charles Reed, Lakeshore elementary principal; Lake Michigan college — Gordon McKnight, Whirlpool Corp. executive; Private and religious schools — Frank Mulcahey, St. Joseph Catholic high school; and Graduate survey — Norman Lambert, Lakeshore high school.

The study began with no prior conclusions. Nobody knew what Berrien really had or what it needed. But as the months slipped by, the survey results came in and were tabulated.

A pattern began to emerge. Gaps in vocational education were evident. Employers cited the need for more programs. Parents and students agreed, and the schools were sometimes

Vocational education, commonly called vo-ed, may not have been exactly a civic disgrace, but Berrien's position was not to be envied, either.

In a period in which unemployment in Berrien runs at only 3.3 per cent, factories and offices are crying for skilled and semi-skilled labor. Jack Baumstark, manager of the twin cities office of the Michigan Employment Security commission, says he has 250 such job openings. In Niles, MECS Manager Ewald Lahli lists 150 unfilled jobs.

And yet, many young men and women in Berrien are unemployed. They lack the basic skills to hold a job.

One Berrien county manufacturer complains: "About 40 per cent of all our applicants cannot properly fill out an application because they can't spell, and some can't even read. We can't use these people."

An area metal fabricator adds: "We have people inquiring for work quite frequently. But most of them have had no training of any kind. We need a place where a young man can learn a trade and then go out and apply himself."

The Berrien Vocational-Technical study unearthed scores of similar complaints. The survey proof began to pile up.

Berrien, one of the richest counties in Michigan, is part of a national pattern that for years has found vo-ed at the bottom of the educational barrel.

Thanks to a new 1963 federal law, there has been some recent progress. But Berrien, like other parts of the nation, is still trying to overcome the decades of neglect that had preceded.

(Tomorrow: Vo-ed laws and programs.)

Three Candidates Running
For Coloma School Board

JOHN WALTER

COLOMA — Three candidates are running for the one four-year vacancy on the Coloma board of education, which will be filled in the June 13 school election.

Seeking the seat are incumbent John Walter, Frank J. Kolesar, and Mrs. Irene Stankiewicz.

INCUMBENT

Walter, who is board president this year, has served on school boards for the past 15 years. He has been on the board of the Coloma Community school system since he was appointed to the interim board in 1958, following school consolidation. He was on the Boyer district board prior to consolidation.

Walter said he is seeking re-election because he is interested in continuing the progressive look toward good education being promoted by the board. Walter has operated the farm on the Red Arrow highway he lives on, for the past 25 years. Recently he sold part of his farm for a subdivision. He is also active in the insurance business.

He has seven children, all of whom graduated from Coloma high school.

ATHLETIC LEADER

Kolesar is the organizer and president of the Coloma Athletic club and has managed a boys' baseball team for two years. He said he is interested in continuing to promote a good sound curriculum for all students and a good athletic program for the school system. He said he would like to see a summer athletic program for youth developed and run by the school.

He is also interested in seeing Coloma get summer and night school programs for students and adults, developed on a college credit basis with extension courses by the colleges.

He said he is also interested in the continued growth of the school system through cooperation with interest in the annexation of area school districts.

Kolesar owns and operates the Coloma News agency and works at the Lake Shore division of Bendix corporation. He is a graduate of Benton Harbor high school, attended Western Michigan university and Lake Michigan college. He has two children, one in kindergarten at the Coloma elementary school and the other a pre-schooler. He has lived in Coloma five years.

ACTIVE HOUSEWIFE

Mrs. Stankiewicz, who is the mother of five children and a housewife, has been active in school affairs since moving to Coloma from Chicago 10 years ago. She said she has always had a sincere desire to serve her community as a member of its board of education. She points to her five children, two of whom are teenagers, two elementary students, and one pre-schooler, as reasons for her interest and concern in school affairs.

Man Held In Knifing

Fair Avenue Fight Reported

A 25-year-old Benton township man sustained a knife wound Saturday night and Ronnie Smith, 19, of 136 Lake avenue, Benton Harbor, has been charged with assault with a deadly weapon in connection with the injury.

Robert Kizer, of 1095 Highland avenue, was stabbed in the back in the 100 block of South Fair avenue around 8:30 p. m. Saturday, according to Benton township police.

Patrolman Thomas Cassidy said Kizer was taken to Mercy hospital by his mother. His condition today was listed as "fair."

Cassidy said Kizer told him that he and his assailant, whom he knew and identified as Smith, got in a fight. When his opponent pulled a knife, Kizer ran but the assailant caught up and stabbed him, Cassidy said Kizer told him.

Smith is lodged in the county jail today awaiting formal filing of the complaint and arraignment. He was arrested by Benton Harbor police Saturday night.

The entire case has been turned over to the Benton Harbor police department because the investigation revealed the alleged incident occurred on the Benton Harbor side of Fair avenue. The 100 block of Fair is part of the boundary between Benton township and Benton Harbor.

DeLONG EXPLAINS

B.H. Wouldn't Have To Pay Full Ambulance Service Cost

The operator of a franchised Kalamazoo ambulance service who proposes to begin such a service for Benton Harbor, Benton township and the surrounding area, has suggested a $25,000 annual subsidy for his service be split among participating municipalities.

Tindall DeLong, who says he has operated the service in Kalamazoo for 11 years, has asked for a joint meeting between officials of Benton Harbor, and the surrounding townships to discuss the program.

Four Benton Harbor funeral directors who now serve the city and surrounding area with ambulances have announced they will stop providing the service on July 1.

The proposal does not apply to St. Joseph, DeLong noted, because St. Joseph funeral home operators have not indicated plans to withdraw from the ambulance business.

DeLong's original proposal to the Benton Harbor city commission resulted in some misunderstanding among commissioners, he said, that the city was being asked to pay the full $25,000 subsidy. He said he proposes the sum should be divided among the governmental units that are served. The Benton Harbor funeral directors, DeLong stated, told him that approximately one-third of their runs are within the city, one-third in Benton township and the remainder in the surrounding areas.

The Kalamazoo man said his service would have two ambulances on duty, each with a two-man crew, on a 24-hour a day basis. A third ambulance would be kept on standby status. It would be necessary, he added, to employ seven or eight men to operate the service.

Customers for the ambulance would be charged $25 per call, and calls outside of the subsidy-paying area also would be charged an additional 50 cents per mile for the extra mileage, according to DeLong's proposal. He said his firm would have men with at least advanced first aid training working on the ambulances, and that registered nurses would be available for special cases.

DeLong also said that his facilities in the ambulances would meet the requirements of the American College of Surgeons on trauma, that his firm would at first rent a building but would make plans to buy a station.

DeLong also said that the city should consider licensing his ambulance service rather than franchising it so that the city could retain control over the operation.

St. Joseph firemen didn't have to leave the station Saturday to douse a fire in the back seat of an auto owned by W.T. Billion of 912 Lewis avenue.

Say Girl, 10, Raped

Police Arrest B.H. Suspect

Benton Harbor police Sunday night arrested a man in connection with the reported rape of a 10-year-old girl.

Patrolman Fred Byers said the arrest followed his taking statement from the alleged victim and other children.

Booked on a rape charge was Peter Mark Hall, 65, of 473 Eighth street, Benton Harbor. In other matters, Frank Reynolds, 79, Benton Harbor, told police he was knocked down and beaten Saturday night by three white youths. Reynolds, also white, said the attack occurred on East Main street, near Hull avenue after he refused to buy beer for the youths. He said they fled in a convertible.

WOMAN ROBBED

Genevieve Williams, 29, early Monday morning told police she was robbed of $27 by a man who tore off her blouse. The incident was reported near a bar on Market street.

Police Sunday night investigated the slaying of two tires on a car owned by Wiley Bowman, 664 Territorial road.

Police on Sunday investigated reports that screen doors had been cut at homes occupied by Frank Ratter, 335 Plumber court, and Sam Guidice, 746 Superior street. Neither of the homes apparently had been entered, police said.

Church To Hear Talk On Africa

Speaker Analyzes Village Attitudes

The public is invited to hear Dr. Merrill H. Jackson of the University of Michigan and the Rev. Paul W. Light of Ann Arbor present "A Look at Contemporary Africa, People and Values" at Fairplain Presbyterian church, West Napier avenue, Benton Harbor, on Tuesday at 7:30 p.m.

This meeting is to be an extension of the Southern Michigan Presbyterian meeting to be held Tuesday at the Fairplain church, beginning at 3 p.m., and also part of an attempt to bring to the attention of delegates, not only business affairs, but expert background information on one of the world's areas of Christian concern.

It is sponsored jointly by the Fairplain Presbyterian church and the Public Affairs Department of the Berrien County Council of Churches.

Dr. Jackson is director of the Social Change Project and also research social psychologist at the Campus Center for Research on Conflict Resolution at the University of Michigan. He also is a faculty staff member at the Center for South and Southeast Asian Studies at the University.

SENSED ATTITUDES
He has just returned from an extensive tour of Africa where he interviewed African leaders and sensed African attitudes, especially of the less publicized ordinary villager.

Born of missionary parents in Viet Nam, he lived in that country until he was 19. From his intimate knowledge of village life there, he was able to probably get closer to such life in Africa than many other observers.

The Rev. Light is minister to students in Ann Arbor. The Presbyterian session will bring together more than 100 pastors and elders from 53 or more churches across Southern Michigan to Detroit.

The afternoon session at 4:30 will include a discussion by both Dr. Jackson and the Rev. Light on "The Theology of Social Change." This session, the Rev. George C. Douma of the host church reports, is open to all ministers of the area.
